

SUMMARY OF MIAMI-DADE INTERNATIONAL TRADE IN GOODS: 2014

The international trade sector of Miami Dade County grew every year between 2002 and 2012 with the exception of 2009 due to the turmoil brought by the great recession. In 2012 the value of goods flowing through the international trade sector in the County reached its highest level yet at $96 billion. Since 2012 the International Trade sector, measured in dollars, has been shrinking, by 3.3% in 2013 and by an additional 6.9% in 2014. In 2013 the decrease in international trade was the result of an increase in imports coupled with a larger decrease in exports. In 2014 the decrease was due to both a decrease in imports (-9.1%) and exports (-5.1%).

The total volume trade, measured in terms of tonnage, increased 1.2% to 7.47 million tons of cargo from 2013 to 2014. Imports measured by weight increased 5.1% over the year while exports of goods decreased 3.5% over the year.

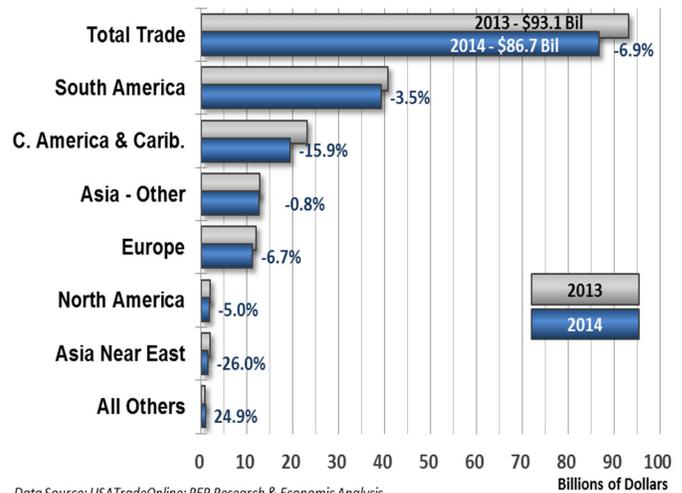

The discrepancy between the trade picture in terms of dollar values and tonnage is consistent with a steady appreciation experienced by the dollar during 2014. The appreciation of the dollar allows importers to bring more goods at a lower dollar denominated price while making exported goods relatively more expensive to other county's importers.

TRADE BY REGION

The data on Miami-Dade’s regional trading partners shows that the decline in the dollar value of trade in 2014 was broad based, with no major trading region experiencing an increase in trade.

Whilst trade with Europe associated with a sharp fall in the price of gold contributed the most to the decline in overall trade in 2013, Central America and the Caribbean contributed the most in 2014. Trade with the region contracted 16% fueled largely by a decrease of $2.7 billion of imports of Electric Machinery Etc. from Costa Rica. This decrease showed up in the data following the closure in that country of an assembly and test plant operated by chipmaker Intel Corporation in April of 2014.

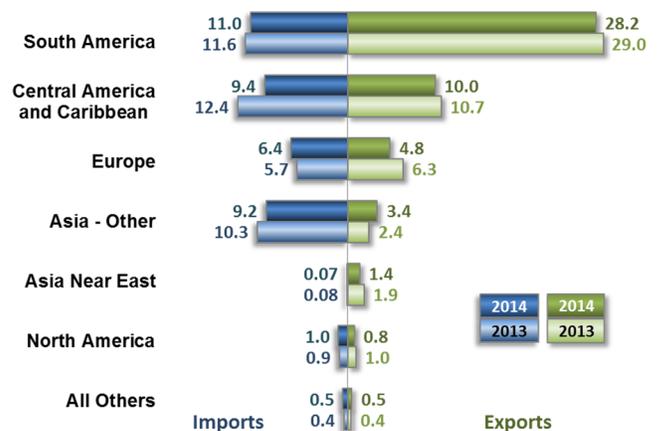

Europe, a region that had been Miami-Dade’s third largest trading partner in 2012 experienced a decline in trade of 30% in 2013 and a further 6.7% in 2014, ending the period as the County’s fourth-largest trading partner. While imports from Europe grew aided by an increase of $435 million of chemicals from Ireland, exports declined by a larger margin due principally to a decrease in precious stones and metals to Switzerland of $2.3 billion.

South American countries (see the list of countries by region at the end of the report) make up the largest trading region for Miami-Dade, accounting for 45% of the total trade value.

Trade with South America declined 3.5% from 2013 to $40.6 billion. This decrease in trade stemmed from both a reduction in exports (down 2.8%), led by a decrease in exports to Venezuela of 22%, and a decrease in imports (down 5.1%) fueled by a drop in imports of precious stones and metals from Peru of $1.6 billion.

Trade with Asia – Other, although in aggregate virtually unchanged, saw important rebalancing between exports and imports. Exports increased 38% due to a billion dollar increase in precious stones and metals sent

COMPARISONS WITH U.S. AND SOUTHEAST

The total value of trade in goods from all world regions increased 3.2% at the national level (all U.S. ports combined) from 2013 to 2014, but Miami-Dade total trade moved in the opposite direction, with a decrease of 6.9%. Exports across the nation were up 2.8% in 2014, but export shipments from Miami-Dade were down by 5.1%. Nationally, imports were up 3.5% compared to a decrease of 9.1% in Miami-Dade. The contraction in trade for Miami-Dade was broad based reaching every major trading region, a contrast to the national level, where the direction was mixed, with declining trade with South America and Central America and the Caribbean, but increased trade with all other major regions, including Asia –Other and Europe.

Miami-Dade’s trade performance in 2014 differed from other U.S. Southeast coastal ports as well. The U.S. southeast coastal ports mimicked the performance of the nation as a whole with drops in trade with South America and Central America and Caribbean and increases in trade with Asia – Other and Europe, although on aggregate also trailing the nation with overall trade up just 0.5% compared to 3.2% for the nation.

Trade with South America declined 3.5% in both Miami-Dade and the other southeast costal ports, and by 3% at the national level. Imports from the region fell the most in the other southeast costal ports with a drop of 6.7%, followed by Miami-Dade with a drop of 5.1% and the nation sliding 4.7%. Exports declined by less than imports at all three levels. Contracting by 2.8% in Miami-Dade, 1.4% in other southeast coastal ports and 1% at the national level.

Although Miami-Dade accounted for just 2.2% of the total U.S. trade, it handled 16.4% of the U.S. trade with South America and 20.1% of the country's trade with Central America and the Caribbean in 2014. The latter share was down from 23.7% in 2013 thanks to the sharper decline in trade with the region experienced by Miami-Dade as compared to the nation as a whole. Trade with Central America and the Caribbean declined by 15.9% in Miami-Dade, 2.7% in the Southeast coastal ports, and by just 0.8% at the national level.

Miami-Dade's next largest region in terms of the value of total trade in 2014 was Asia-Other. The value of total trade decreased 0.8% from 2013 to 2014. Imports were down 10.1% and exports were up 38.2% year-over-year. Nationally the value of trade with this region was up 4.1% (imports 5.2%; exports 1.7%) over the same time period. Miami-Dade County's share of national exports to this region grew to 4.4% in 2014 from 3.4% in 2013. Southeast coastal ports saw trade with Asia-other grow 4.9% (imports 4.6%; exports 5.5%) over last year.

The values of trade with Europe experienced the greatest divergence in trends between Miami-Dade and southeastern coastal and national ports. Total trade of goods between Miami-Dade and Europe decreased 6.7% from 2013 to 2014. The value of imports were up 11.8% while exports were off 23.5%. Nationally, trade with Europe increased 4.8%, (imports 6.7%; exports 2.2%). Miami-Dade's share of European trade of goods declined from 1.5% in 2013 to 1.4% in 2014. Trade between Europe and all southeast coastal ports increased 5.3% (imports 8%; exports 1.5%) from the previous year.

Miami-Dade County did not only underperform the nation and the southeast coastal ports with respect to trade with its major partners but also with respect to the balance of its trading partners with a decline of 8.5% compared to an increase of 2.8% at the national level.

TRADE BY COMMODITY

There were a few notable shifts in the value of trade by commodities from Miami-Dade’s airport and seaport viewed in terms of broad commodity groups. The top two categories of commodities accounted for 48% of all Miami-Dade trade. These two categories also accounted for the bulk of the decline in the value of trade. The largest, Machinery, which is mostly data processing and communications equipment, circuit boards and office equipment and parts, was down 13% ($4.5 billion) and Stone & Glass, a group that includes gold and other precious metals was down 17.5% ($2.3billion).

The next largest commodity group was Transportation, accounting for 9% of total traded goods ($7.8 billion). Over 73% of this category came from exports of Aircraft, Spacecraft, and Parts Thereof. Exports of transportation commodities grew by 2.9% ($200 million) while imports increased by approximately 18.7% ($122 million).

The fourth category of traded commodities was Chemicals, representing 7.6% of total trade. Overall the value of trade for this commodity group was down 6.4%, a decline that resulted from a drop of 29.2% in imports, partially offset by an increase in exports of 11.9% largely due to an increase in the export of Pharmaceutical Products.

While total trade of machinery declined in Miami-Dade County, it increased for both the southeastern coastal ports and nationally. While it decreased by approximately $4.5 billion (-13%) in Miami-Dade, it increased for the nation as whole (+$49 billion, +5%). Among the aggregate of southeast coastal ports, trade shipments of machinery increased about $2.4 billion (+1.4%). Nationally the trade of transportation commodities increased approximately $29 billion (+5.5%) and by $322 million (+4.3%) in Miami-Dade. Southeastern ports saw trade of transportation commodities surge by $9.4 billion (+10.3%).

Trade shipments of stone and glass commodities decreased at the national level by about $6.7 billion (-4%). Among southeast coastal ports trade in stone and glass decreased about $3.1 billion, and fell by about $2.3 billion in Miami-Dade.
