Ms. Woodbury has over 20 years of experience in resource development leadership, management, and coaching. She brings a depth of knowledge in building fundraising capacity, soliciting major gifts, recruiting and managing volunteer leadership, identifying in-kind resources, researching and launching social enterprises, creating communications strategies, and establishing strategic partnerships. Her passion for this work has taken her around the world to lead teams and endeavors for local, national, and international nonprofit organizations.

Holly is currently a resource development coach for The Children's Trust Small CBO Capacity Building Institute, helping local nonprofits to increase their fundraising and volunteer leadership infrastructure. Additionally, she serves as a management consultant to Stella's Child, an internationally recognized NGO for workforce development for disadvantaged Indonesian youth. Prior to these projects, for six years she led the development, marketing, and community outreach efforts for Chapman Partnership, the largest provider of emergency services to the homeless of Miami-Dade County. Preceding Holly's move to South Florida to engage with Chapman Partnership, she managed fundraising campaigns for Denver Parks & Recreations, Women's Bean Project, and The Rocky Mountain Chapter of The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society.
