Subject: Ordinance Providing Residency Condition For New Employees

The proposed ordinance creating a residency requirement for new employees will have a fiscal impact that is difficult to estimate. Monitoring and enforcement would require staff time, which could create a cost to the County. On the other hand, ensuring that employees paid by Miami-Dade taxpayers are committed to living in the county – and therefore more likely to buy or rent a home and shop in the county – could have a positive impact on revenues.

Because the proposed ordinance does not provide for waivers, the substantial staff time spent reviewing waiver requests under a previous residency requirement would not be a factor.
