PROJECT ABSTRACT

The attached document is a result of subsequent meetings of the agencies that presented at both Miami-Dade Board of County Commissioner's Safe Neighborhood's Committee and Vice Chair Audrey Edmonson's Operation Restoration meetings. Each of the four collaborating agencies were invited to participate in a round-table discussion to develop a plan conceptualizing what the overall program could look like. The agencies that participated in these round-table discussions were the Florida Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Community Youth against Violence, Circle of Brotherhood, and the Urban Partnership of Miami-Dade County Coalition.

This document details the consensus that community leaders, stakeholders and residents working together with shared leadership and input can build a sustainable plan unique for their neighborhoods long after this funding concludes. The initial paragraphs of this draft summarize this process and highlights the potential success when implement.

The concept presented introduces six (6) obtainable goals of the first 12 months of operation. Each goal has a brief outline of objectives and strategies that will be implemented to obtain each goal. Each of the six goals also have timelines that diagramed that demonstrate when how the program will be implemented.

It is our hope that this document will be an aid to those who have the arduous task of developing a plan for the BCC's Safe Neighborhood's Committee.

SECTION A: PROJECT NARRATIVE:

SCLC History

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference was formed in 1957 just after the Montgomery Bus Boycott had ended. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference's (SCLC) main aim was to advance the cause of civil rights in America in a non-violent manner. From its inception in 1957, its president Dr. Martin Luther King sought social and economic equality. Today SCLC is on the front line on all issues facing disfranchised people throughout the United States. Gun Violence is one of many social ills that erode the fabric of our African American Community. Reverend Gary Johnson is active regional President and works tirelessly throughout the state of caring Dr. King's dream forward.

Executive Summary

Repositioning the faith-based community to lead the charge is a proactive bipartisan approach to end inner city gun violence. Opposed to robust criminal justice spending, lopsided sentencing, SCLC proposes the local, state, and federal government empowers America's oldest institution, the church to win this war. Through re-tooling pastoral leadership to be THE relevant reconciliation force, we will save the lives of many lost in senseless gun violence.

As America's leading grass roots organization, SCLC will connect the hearts of local leadership, with the innovative tools in academia, and best practices of law enforcement to engage youth and family at center of the chaos. Through the formation of Peace Hubs at selected local churches, these traditional places of refuge will take a hands-on approach to gun violence prevention through meaningful conflict resolution training. Through the collective re-branding of the church and a mini-grant process, churches will increase their capacity to serve.

Strategic Partner - Urban Partnership of Miami-Dade County Coalition (UPMDCC)

UPMDCC Coalition's History: Since December 2010, UPMDCC has committed its efforts to the establishment of a Miami-Dade County-wide collaborative among faith-based ministries and community coalitions. The purpose of the County-Wide effort is to reduce youth (gun murder) violence. Gun violence is a Public Health issue that can be addressed with Public Health solutions. First, we must recognize gun violence as a critical and preventable public health problem. The solutions must be comprehensive, include community level planning that results into the implementation of a comprehensive community strategy that includes prevention (primary and secondary), intervention and suppression components. To this point, the University of Miami's Prevention Department (Dr. Eric Brown) has partnered with UPMDCC as a Coalition Sector Representative. UM's function is two-fold, first, to complete IRB approval process for a partnership approval with Miami-Dade Public Schools, and secondly, to conduct the data collection for UPMDCC, including county-wide data for community comparisons. UM's involvement has led to the Annie E. Casey Foundation's three-year funding award to UPMDCC, to grow community coalition efforts with the purpose of implementing Evidence2Success (Communities that Care) practices county-wide.

Strategic Partner-Community Youth Against Violence

The CYAV-Student Coalition will be implemented Miami-Dade Public High Schools where students will run the coalition meetings with an C.Y.A.V. Mentor designed to target Youth Crime Reduction. The CYAV-Student will meet quarterly with other CYAV High School groups to discuss and implement Crime Reduction Strategies. Collaborating with Local Police Departments to implement Teen Curfew designed to keep youth out of night-time dangerous situations. The use of billboards, etc. will aid in community awareness of the curfew, assisting in the enforcement. will collaborate with community partners to offer parents methods of raising and understanding today's youth. C.Y.A.V. partners will establish lines of communication with parents in regard to raising their youth. C.Y.A.V. partners will also provide information on available partners to help with issues other than crime including, but not limited to, Mental Health concerns.

Strategic Partner-Circle of Brotherhood

The mission of the Circle of Brotherhood (COB) is to involve Black Men in solving community problems and to help make our communities a decent place to live. We have primary focuses on youth development, crime prevention and economic sustainability. We believe that all men regardless of their past, current status, or station in life deserve an opportunity to contribute to the rebuilding of our communities and the edification of disenfranchised people. We thrive to do this through a collective and collaborative manner.

Regional Law Enforcement & Academia

SCLC will formulate a formal partnership with regional law enforcement to get real-time information in high gun-violence regions throughout the neighborhoods to determine the locations of PEACE HUBS. In addition to the identifying locations, the partnership will allow SCLC to be the conduit to foster back the communities trust in local policing. To, train local pastoral leadership, SCLC will develop a conflict resolution think-tank in partnership with local Universities, mental health professionals, and national leaders in conflict resolution.

During the research and development phase, SCLC will identify local staffing requirements and tangible metrics to measure success, and modify programmatic requirements to ensure those churches participating are receiving the aid required to be most effective.

Summary

Our goal is to create, communicate and collaborate. These local organizations will create a collaborative effort to eliminate gun violence in our community. This will produce a shift in communication between law enforcement, houses of worship, businesses and residents. The project plan will be for a total of $1.5 million. The detailed budget narrative will follow.

Gun violence is a leading cause of premature death in the country. Yet, unlike other preventable causes of death, we haven't mustered the political will to address it. Gun violence is most noticed when multiple people die at once, but it affects too many communities and families on a daily basis whether through suicide, domestic violence, community violence, or other forms. Data shows that risk for firearm violence varies substantially by age, race, gender, and geography, in patterns that are quite different for suicide and homicide. Through a public health approach, we have learned that violence is preventable across all of its forms. The public health approach studies data on various forms of violence and who is affected and identifies the biggest risk factors and what's protective, and develops policy, practice, and program solutions in partnership with other sectors and community members. Many communities and groups have adopted a public health approach to preventing violence such as Prevention Institute's UNITY City Network and Cities United, a growing network of over 100 mayors.

Mental health and trauma has damaging effects on learning, behavior, and health across the life course, especially during key developmental stages such as early childhood and adolescence and can increase the risk for multiple forms of violence. Thus, the attached abstract of a community plan is not final this project includes ongoing planning as a major component of the Peace Hubs Project.

Following the implementation of Minneapolis' Blueprint for Action to Prevent Youth Violence, which prioritized prevention and upstream strategies, the City experienced a 62% reduction in youth gunshot victims, a 34% reduction in youth victims of crime, and a 76% reduction in youth arrests with a gun from 2007-2015. A growing number of community strategic plans across the country include upstream strategies such as family/individual therapy, youth employment, substance abuse campaigns, cognitive, social and emotional skills development among youth, community and school based safe havens, neighborhood economic development, safe and free activities in public parks, restoring vacant land, and reducing alcohol outlet density. A growing research base demonstrates that it is possible to prevent shootings and killings through well thought-out public health approaches. Yet too many communities lack the resources to do what is needed. However, we (Miami-Dade County) must commit to helping communities identify and implement solutions and community coalitions have proven to be the best approach in resolving local community issues.

Peace Hubs Project Includes:

UPMDCC and SCLC are working to align the 12 Sector Representative, the community residents and key stakeholders to reduce and prevent youth (gun murder) violence among youth, their families and those of future generations. The development of an "Action Plan" using a data driven process that provides activities intended to build coalition capacity and membership. The creation of a collaborative community process for community prevention and intervention planning that focuses on the reduction of mental health and traumatic episodes among youth during early childhood. With increased understanding of Strategic Prevention Framework, community members are better equipped in launching community campaigns that bring the community together through local media, community events, and door to door relationship building activities. SCLC Peace Hubs Project's community impact will increase with the implementation of the Seven Strategies for Community Change, the creation of logic models and the development of community action plans; to include the development of youth coalitions. SPF will provide some clear guidelines for the obtainment of the desired community involvement. Community leaders' exposure to prevention trainings, and their experience of a positive collaborative effort that includes the creation of social media and marketing campaigns; with the primary focus on positive social-norming within the community and local schools will serve at the foundation of the community gathering and community coalition building. Dr. Eric C. Brown, University of Miami Associate Professor, along with students from the University of Miami will assist the coalition and UPMDCC in the training on data and community relationship building as the essentials of community prevention work. Rev. Charles Dinkins, program director of UPMDCC, will work closely with Rev. Gary Johnson, President of SCLC to ensure the daily coalition activities are proceeding. The effort is to increase understating of the SPF process, and improve the SPF among the program director, project coordinator and 12 sector representatives, in addition to providing insight on how their roles interact and apply to each other as a method for addressing the youth (gun murder) violence and other youth related concerns.

Program Goals, Objectives and Activities:

The goal is group harmony and like-minded residents who:

- Have a passion and vested interest for youth and the mission of this project;

- Are willing to work; and,

Strategic Prevention Framework, Evidenc2Success, Logic Models, Community Assessments and the seven community change strategies; to include technical assistance will focus on the community coalition process, data collection and analysis, social development theory and the interaction among staff and coalition volunteers in conjunction with the 12 -Month Action Plan below:

Violence persists despite external punishment or moral judgment. In order to effectively combat peaking societal violence, social norms must be targeted from the source. UPMDCC surveyed 800 youth Nov/Dec 2016 and asked ... How often do you see either of your parents resolve conflict with other people by using a weapon (like a gun or knife) to threaten or hurt the other person? The following reflects the results:

All Grades
Response	#	%
Never	518	72.7%
Rarely	64	9.0%
Sometimes	68	9.5%
Often	32	4.5%
Almost Always	31	4.3%

Peace Hubs connects with trusted community members committed to both transforming the direction of their lives as well as to cleansing the violence from their communities. These individuals have experienced and participated in the violence first hand. They make it possible to anticipate where violence will occur and to intervene before violence has a chance to erupt. These individuals further act as mentors for high-risk individuals, illustrating a path out of violence and an opportunity for a more nourishing life.
