WHEREAS, Miami-Dade County has been a leader in agricultural innovation and experimentation; and

WHEREAS, industrial hemp has potential for use in a variety of products, including food, oil, fiber, cosmetics, textiles, and fabrics; and

WHEREAS, the Agricultural Act of 2014, P.L. 113-79, (“the 2014 Farm Bill”) and Agriculture Improvement Act of 2018, P.L. 115-334 (“the 2018 Farm Bill”), introduced further regulatory distinctions between hemp and marijuana; and

WHEREAS, the 2014 Farm Bill provided for new policies related to industrial hemp, specifically allowing research institutions and state departments of agriculture to cultivate and study industrial hemp; and

WHEREAS, the 2018 Farm Bill excluded industrial hemp from Schedule I of the Controlled Substances Act, and directed states to create their own regulations to license the production of industrial hemp by authorized growers; and

WHEREAS, the 2018 Farm Bill further made hemp eligible for crop insurance programs and United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) research and development programs; and

WHEREAS, in 2019 the Florida Legislature enacted Senate Bill 1020 to establish the state hemp program within the Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services; and

WHEREAS, Miami-Dade growers may have the potential to leverage industrial hemp as both a summer rotational crop and a mainline business with significant opportunities to develop value-added products, creating local jobs in a new and rapidly expanding market; and

WHEREAS, with the State of Florida embracing industrial hemp through research institutions, there are new opportunities to capitalize on the agricultural research institutions in the County such as the University of Florida Institute for Food and Agricultural Science Tropical Research and Education Center and the Florida International University Agroecology Program, to ensure Miami-Dade takes a leadership role in the growth of this industry,
