Vivian,

Please see my response in red below. Don't hesitate to contact me with any questions.

Good morning Patty, after reviewing the documents received some clarifications are needed:

- There is a discrepancy between the TC breakdown in the Memo and the TC breakdown in the NTPC which shows TC 6.01 as Prime and/or Sub-consultants. Please confirm that the NTPC breakdown is the correct one. I did not assign the % breakdown in 6.01, 6.02, and 6.03; however the Prime and Sub-consultants need to have all three. In addition they also need to meet the Minimum Experience and Qualifications listed in the memo. The Sub-consultants do not need to have Infor experience, as I expect the prime to handle this.
- Base on the NTPC breakdown, it seems that the bulk of the work (85%) will be assigned to the prime leaving the project with little participation from CBE sub-consultants. Please confirm if that is WASD intention. Yes, this is correct. Being that this project requires a lot of coordination, experienced resources, tedious engineering work, and good management, I would rather the prime handle the bulk of the work and avoid conflicts. I have a very strict deadline and need to address many technical issues, so I think having the prime responsible for the largest tasks would minimize the amount of time I spend dealing with multiple consultants and unnecessary overhead.

As per NTPC, can the min 10 years' experience requirement for the sub-consultants be lifted or maybe changed from 10 years' experience to a minimum of one (1) WASD water and wastewater project? I don't mind lowering it to 5 years, but due to the technical nature, 1 year will not suffice.

Thank you,
